The brand new Faculty Academy for the Scholarship of Education (FASE) is delighted to present a series of lunchtime seminars with the aim of disseminating good practice in education across the Faculty.

Values Exchange Seminar
Friday 25th June 2010
12.00pm – 2.00pm
Room G.09, Undergraduate Computer Room, Ground Floor, School of Environmental Systems Engineering

Values Exchange is an online system created by David Seedhouse, to mimic the sort of discussion opportunities available in Universities.

In this seminar, David will speak about the Values Exchange system which has proven to be a success in Universities and particularly in the schools environment, where it is generating real excitement.

David is currently building a new look Values Exchange, called Values Exchange Collective Wisdom, that is looking to take the power of Web 2.0 social networks and add tools for a deeper reflection and immediate, transparent, explorable reporting that is open to everyone.

This lunchtime seminar will be led by

David Seedhouse
David is a philosophy PhD who spent 13 years working in Medical schools, where he used his philosophical experience to offer ‘thinking structures’ to health professionals, who typically work in urgent, fraught environments with little time for reflection.
Frustrated at being able to reach only a handful of health workers, David created the online system, Values Exchange.

David is an original thinker and prolific author, highly regarded by health practitioners and students alike. Although David has a background in philosophy, his work is always focused on solving practical problems.

David is best known for his writing on health and ethics, yet his work straddles many areas of social, philosophical and political concern.
His primary interest now lies in the development of software to enable transparent decision-making in health care, local democracy, school and other social settings.

Currently, David is Professor of Health and Social Ethics at Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand, Professor of Values Transparency at Staffordshire University and Visiting Professor at the University of Cumbria, UK. He is also the Chief Executive Officer of ViDe Ltd, the creators of Values Exchange.
